

Eighth Wonder Rice at the Blair House, Washington DC

Non traditional heirloom grains decorate the Blair House

Eighth Wonder Heirloom Rice was included in a non-traditional holiday display at the Blair House in Washington, DC in December. The Blair House is the guesthouse for international visitors to the White House.

The project, the State Department's Magazine Holiday Design Showcase, was a joint effort between the State Department and a number of food magazines. Mother Earth News (MEN) made the request for rice for their decorating project. MEN's nontraditional decorations featured heirloom varieties of the world's three primary grains—corn, wheat and rice.

The visually striking heirloom rice was used in the table display